Papier- Mâché

Papier Mache is a unique form of paper craft developed during the Mughal period. The craft involves use of paper and textile. The paper is bound to cloth using different adhesives. The adhesives used are glue, starch or wallpaper paste. The articles made out of paper mache technique can be used as household items and for decoration. Kashmir is known to be a state that really started this art of paper decoration.

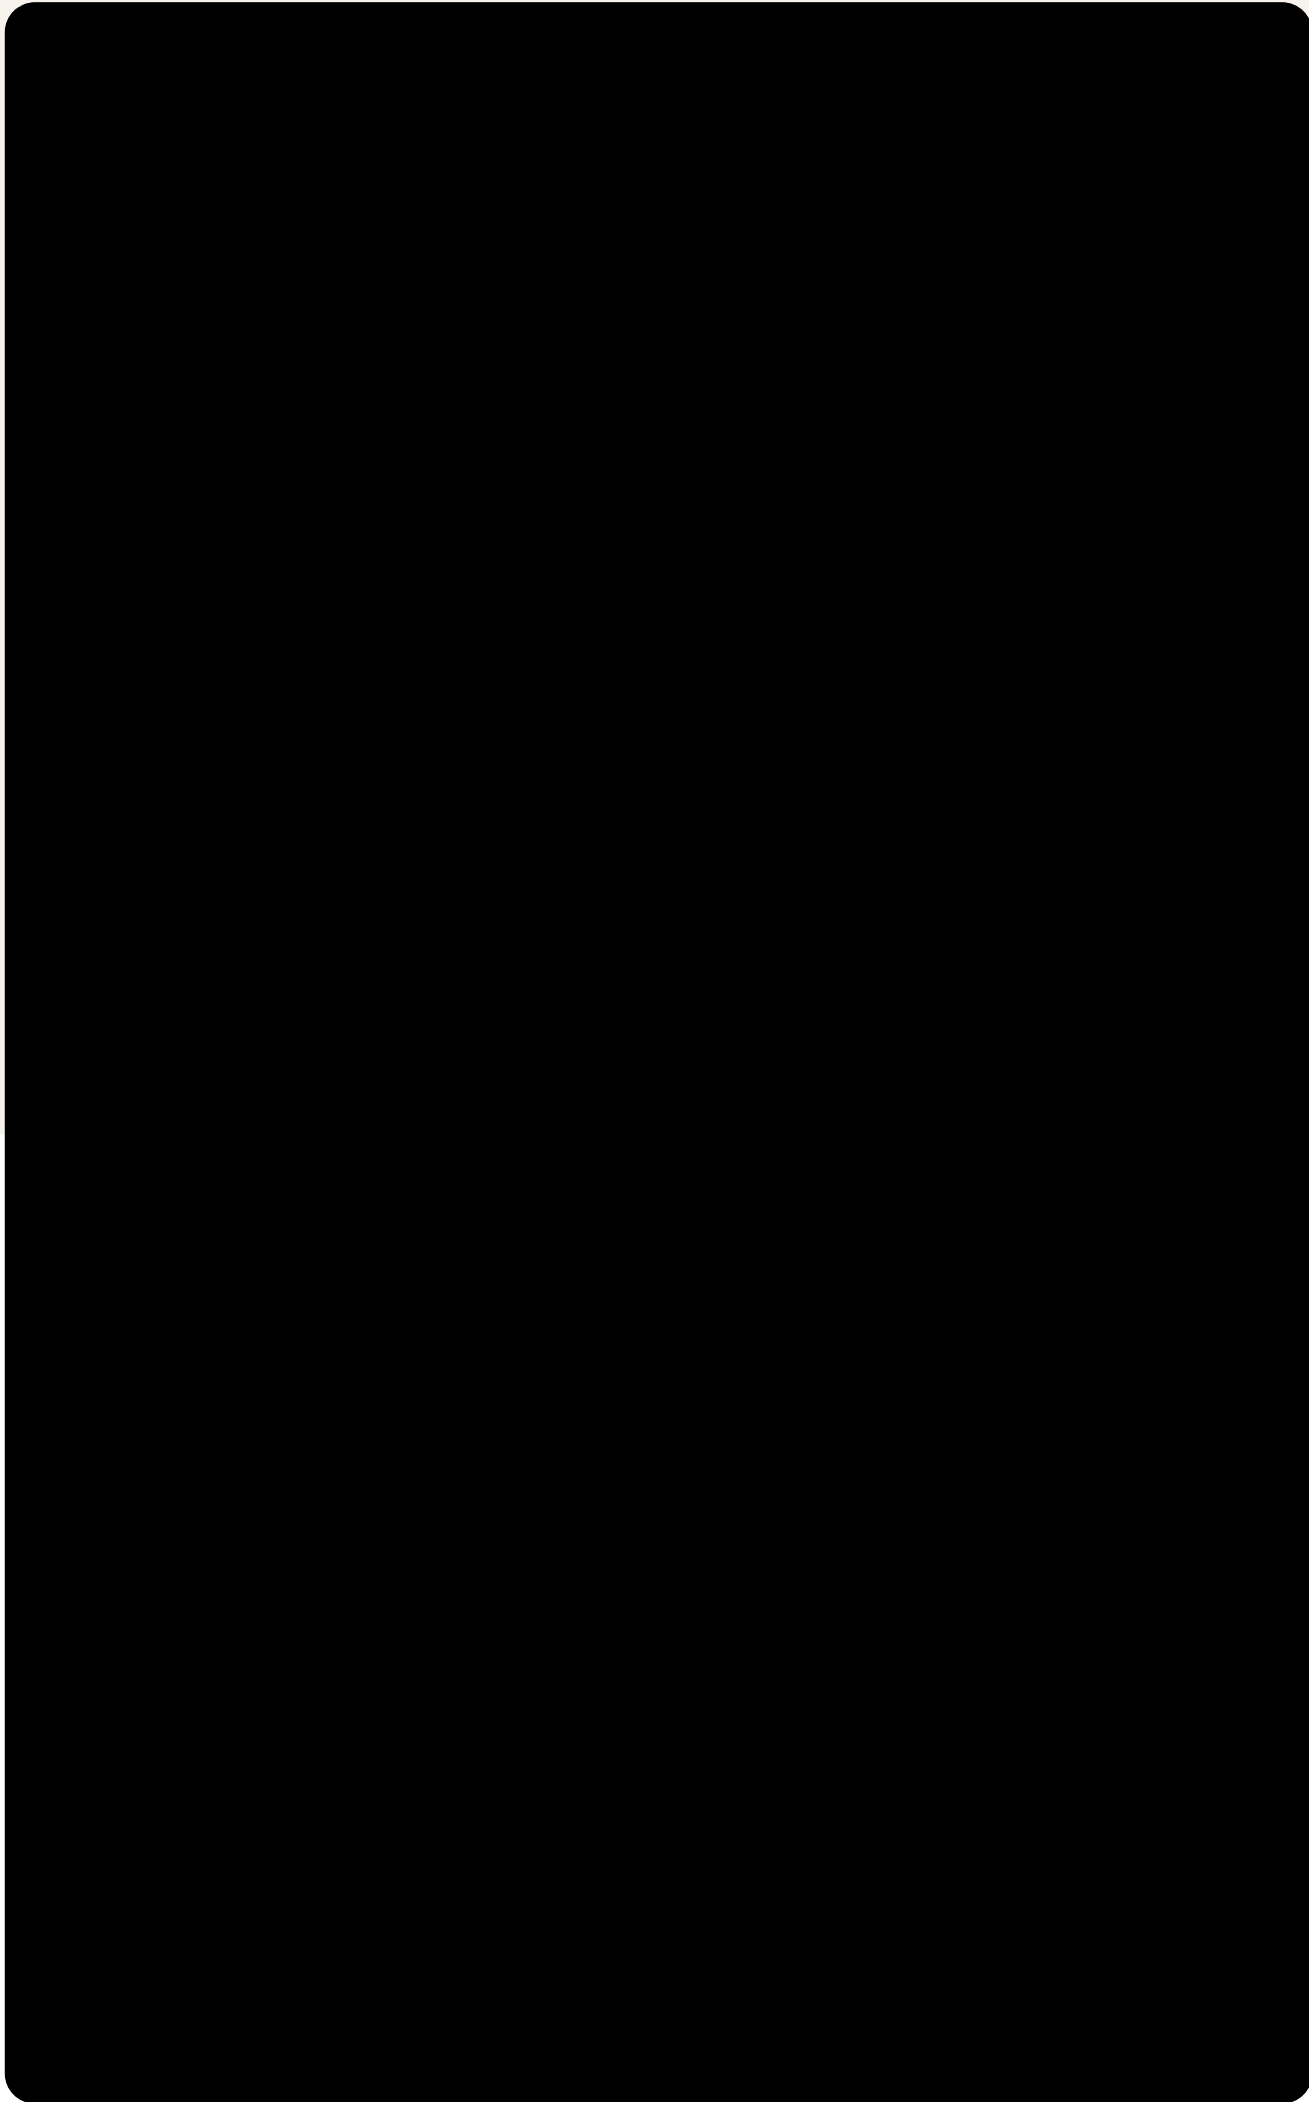

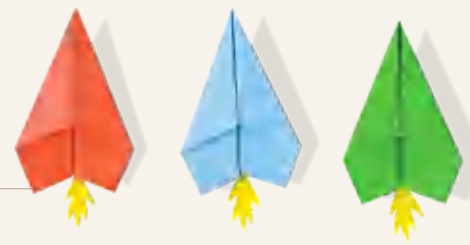

Art of Kashmir

In the places that bear a cool weather, granite laminates are the perfect options. Also, in Kashmir, laminates with designs that imitate naqashi painting, are more used and purchased!.

Tradition of Gujarat

From the Bhungas of Kutch to the Bohra Houses in Siddhapur, wood and stone houses of Vishnagar and Pols of Ahmedabad, the traditional houses of Gujarat have been built to protect them from the scorching heat of this state. Soothing and cool colours of laminate sheets are better chosen by the majority of crowd here.

Khamp:

As a laminate industry, we relate to the jewel of India – the state that truly stands out for its cultural and artistic contribution. Gujarat has various art forms and one of them is Khamp. Using thin bamboo strips and a square paper is made a KITE. The bamboo strips used here give a skeletal support to the paper and their diagonal arrangement makes a kite fly in the air. People fly kites during the kite festival.

Sola Pith:

In West Bengal, this craft is mainly practiced. Shola or Kuhila is a plant, growing wild in marshy waterlogged areas. The Sholapith is the cortex or core of the plant and these inner soft milky-white and spongy materials. The feasibility and proficiency of the artists carries the tradition of antique creation and dexterity. The crafts can claim the superiority and the artisan's success and popularity due to its artistic beauty and perfect expressiveness as well as its wonderful fineness.

Rajasthani kathputli

Basically the word kathputali is a blend word of two words katha and putali. Katha literally means wood and putali means a doll. As we produce products that are made from papers, we, through this catalogue appreciate some of the paper arts very well practiced through different parts of India. Rajasthan is very well famous for making paper kathaputlis that the people use for entertainment acts as well as wall decors!

Dashavatara Ganjifa

Dashavatara Ganjifa

Long back in 1527, the founder of Mughal dynasty- Babar sent Dasavtara Ganjifa as a gift set to Shah Hasan. These round playing cards were precious as they were each hand painted on ivory and inlaid with precious stones. The ganjifa contained 10 suits of 12 cards. The 10 suits were on the based on the 10 incarnation of lord Vishnu. These suits were: Matsya (fish), Kurma (turtle), Varaha (boar), Narasimha (lion), Vamana (water pot), Parashurama (axe), Rama (bow & arrow, or monkey), Krishna (quoit or cow), Buddha (conch) and Kalkin (sword or horse). Ganjifa Cards are a labor of love. They are painstakingly crafted upon a canvas.

Gond

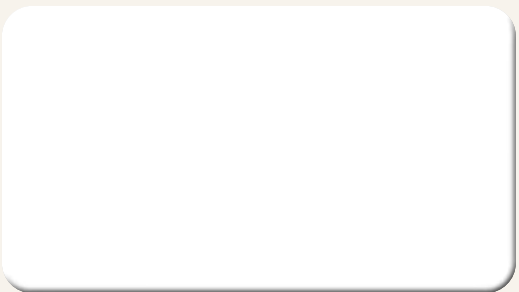

Gond:

The Gonds, are the largest Adivasi Community in India. They are mainly found in Madhya Pradesh. They used to make wall paintings to decorate their homes and later, called the art Gond. Initially this form nurtured as paper art where they stick different colored bits of papers on a painting they make. These paintings are mostly done on canvas or paper with bright and vibrant colors. In ancient times, the colors used were natural and were extracted from charcoal, cow dung, leaves and colored soil.
